Life Insurance Investments Upped During Past Year

NEW YORK — The five East North Central States showed the largest regional dollar gain in life insurance investments in the most recent analysis released today by the Life Insurance Association of America.

The analysis, covering investments by geographic region at the start of last year for companies representing 86 per cent of total life insurance funds, showed a one year rise in these five states of $834,805,000. This brought total life insurance investments in these states of the companies surveyed to $14,965,773,000, nearly double the investment at the end of World War II.

The three Pacific States accounted for the second largest gain, the year's increase of $763,091,000 bringing total investments in the region to $9,312,868,000, about three times the 1945 figure.

In the four West South Central States, the year's increase was $620,117,000 and the new aggregate $5,797,723,000, up about 180 per cent from 1945.

In the three Middle Atlantic States, which lead the United States regionally in total life insurance ownership, the year's increase in life insurance investments was $883,965,000, bringing aggregate investments of the life companies to $14,218,915,000 or about 50 per cent over the 1945 figure.

Alfalfa Club Is Just For Fun Group

WASHINGTON—Ever since the days when Washington notables wore beards and ... they've gathered once ... to let down their hair.

Medium for the high jinks is the Alfalfa Club, with a membership limited to 150 of the nation's top diplomatic, executive, congressional, judicial, military, business, and professional men. Tony upholds tradition with an annual banquet, and with less formal get-togethers throughout the year.

The President, Vice President, and a quorum of the Cabinet are among Alfalfa's members. A World War II hero named Dwight D. Eisenhower was admitted to membership 12 years ago, long before destiny led him to the White House.

Despite its "Who's Who" composition, the club has no purpose beyond convivial fun. In a city where politics is a pervading, tensely serious business 364 days a year, the annual dinners give members an opportunity to forget political lines and lightly jibe at each other.

Climax of each Alfalfa banquet is a mock political convention. Members choose their own candidates for President of the United States. Needless to say, no candidate of the Alfalfa Party has ever garnered a single electoral vote—though many members have reached high office by both the Democratic and Republican routes.

Egypt's Sphinx Gets Beauty Treatment

WASHINGTON — There's nothing inscrutable about the Sphinx's present smile. The 4,500-year-old lady is getting a facial.

The Egyptian Department of Antiquities recently began cleaning and restoring the magnificent monument—an object of speculation, admiration, and mutilation since prehistoric times.

This is not the first time that the mysterious guardian of the pyramids has needed urgent care. King Thutmose IV ordered repairs some 3,500 years ago. It has received beauty treatments several times in the 19th and 20th centuries.

By and large, however, the colossus with a human head and lion's body has admirably weathered the erosion of old age and sand.

Insecurity Is Often Cause of Insomnia

CHICAGO — Physical contact—even if it's only your own hand touching your leg—helps overcome sleeplessness by providing a feeling of security, according to an Indiana sleep researcher.

Donald A. Laird, Ph. D., Lebanon, Ind., an industrial psychologist, said sleeplessness is frequently caused by some type of anxiety that keeps the person so "vigilant" that he can't go to sleep.

Mountains at Sea

WASHINGTON — The Atlantic Ocean hides the world's mightiest range of mountains, winding beneath the cold waters from Antarctica to the Arctic. Although peaks of the submerged chain average 10,000 feet, only the loftiest pinnacles emerge as islands above the sea.
